SCHOOL ESSENTIALS STILL NEEDED FOR KATRINA-AFFECTED SCHOOLS

WhisperPhone donations are valued at $6,000, more on the way

April 28, 2006 (Minneapolis, MN)—Harebrain, Inc., creator of the WhisperPhone[®], donated $6,000 of WhisperPhones in April to Hurricane Katrina-affected schools in Louisiana, but more are needed.

“Students of the Gulf Coast region had a terrible interruption in their education and lives, and we saw an opportunity to help by donating WhisperPhones to schools. Schools give children a sense of normalcy, and we all need to help make sure schools have the supplies they need,” said Steve Swain, co-creator of the WhisperPhone.

In the wake of the Hurricane Katrina, schools continue to struggle with the condition of buildings, well-being of staff and students and the need for resources like school supplies. While this is not the season people generally think about school supplies, students and teachers need these resources immediately. Extensive lists of school supplies needed in schools in the Gulf Coast region are on the Web site: <http://hurricanehelpforschools.gov/index.html>.

The WhisperPhone, an educational tool for children and adults, is available for purchase through education suppliers, specialty catalogs, school product retailers and www.whisperphone.com. The WhisperPhone[®] is an innovative product that helps students learn by making their voices more clear as they read. It is hands-free, reversible, lightweight and dishwasher safe. No batteries are required. It is made in the United States by Harebrain, Inc.
